

TESTIMONIALS & QUOTES

“[A]n eloquent group of contributors...in a book distinctive for its wealth of clarifying information and illuminating interpretations as well as for its generous design and striking use of photographs.”

—Booklist

“Finally, a book that inspires awe, stimulates outrage, and offers vision—all at the same time. Fatal Harvest is banquet of brilliant insights. It shows how we can break through the myths that paralyze us as we follow the food to make sense of our world. We learn we don’t have to degrade our planet in order to feed ourselves. Thank you for waking us up before it’s too late!”

—Frances Moore Lappé, co-author of Hope’s Edge: The Next Diet for a Small Planet

“Fatal Harvest is indispensable reading for the concerned consumer. Not only do the text and photos clearly and graphically lay out the major threats to public health and the environment posed by genetic engineering, industrial farming, and corporate control of the world’s food and fiber, but the book also gives us the solution: organic agriculture. Fatal Harvest is a call to arms for consumers and farmers worldwide to put an end to 50 years of insanity—chemical-intensive and now genetically engineered agriculture.”

—Ronnie Cummins, National Director, Organic Consumers Association

“Few things say more about who we are as a people and what we are becoming than the food we eat and the way we produce it. If you are someone who values a healthy and sustainable way of life more than junk food, this is a must-have book. It will fill you with clarity and inspiration.”

—John Robbins, author of The Food Revolution and Diet for a New America
